Arthur Erickson

Simon Fraser University, the downtown Law Courts and the UBC Museum of Anthropology are just a few Erickson projects that have become landmarks of Vancouver architecture. His former protégés include Bing Thom and from the Vancouver rock producer's well-rounded résumé. He's twiddled the knobs for Van Halen, David Bowie and AC/DC, masterminded Aerosmith's comeback and overseen releases by INXS and the cranberries.

Diane Farris

Farris opened her award-winning Diane Farris Gallery in 1984 with a mandate to promote young Canadian artists. Many of the talents she supported—most notably Thomas Fung—specializes in movie soundtracks.

Thomas Fung

Richmond's first Asian-style shopping centre has inspired a host of imitators since it opened in 1990, and the cluster of malls that surrounds Thomas Fung's Aberdeen Centre is now an international tourist attraction. About to oversee a $60-million expansion of the flagship mall through his Fairchild Group, Fung also has extensive holdings in Chinese-language television and radio.
